History

Riverside Park was created by the City of New London in 1893 with land acquired from the Post Hill Improvement Company. By 1910 it had expanded to nearly 33 acres, thanks to gifts from S.D. Lawrence, F.B. Brandegee and the Palmer Brothers. Over the last 50 years, parcels have been transferred, so the park now covers about 18 acres. Once a popular recreation spot - for games, picnicking, swimming and viewing the annual Yale-Harvard Regatta - Riverside Park became isolated due to the construction of I-95 and urban renewal. As the park gradually fell into disrepair, its unique landscape and sweeping views of the Thames River were largely forgotten outside of its East New London neighborhood.

The Riverside Park Conservancy was founded by a group of dedicated civic and philanthropic citizens. They were determined to end Riverside Park's dramatic decline and restore it to its former splendor as New London's first and foremost major urban public space.

Today, the Conservancy's mission is to restore, manage and enhance Riverside Park, in partnership with the public, for the enjoyment of present and future generations. Riverside Park Conservancy has hosted park clean-ups and events, sponsored Plein Air painting, planted flower gardens and begun implementing facility improvements. In December 2012, Riverside Park Conservancy was recognized as a public charity under section 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code. Contributions are tax deductible.

The purpose of the Riverside Park Conservancy, Inc. is to restore, manage and enhance Riverside Park, in partnership with the public and local government, for the enjoyment of present and future generations, and to improve the quality of open space for all New Londoners.
